

Paradigm Norton continues to grow

Award-winning financial planners Paradigm Norton continue to expand with the merger of London firm The Red House Consulting Limited. Paradigm Norton now employ a team of 55 across its offices located in Bristol, Torquay and London.

The Bristol based company announced today (Thursday 14th of December) that it has merged with The Red House, a leading firm of financial planners based in Farringdon, London. The merger is part of its planned strategy to build a significant financial planning business focussed on delivering great financial planning and life outcomes for its clients and creating a dynamic environment for its team to develop and grow.

Paradigm Norton's Chief Executive Barry Horner commented-

"We are absolutely thrilled to be merging with The Red House, a firm we have watched for a number of years, who share our values, passion and commitment to delivering an excellent client experience."

Ruth Sturkey, Managing Director of The Red House, commented: -

"We are delighted to be joining forces with Paradigm Norton, a firm we have known and admired for nearly ten years. This merger is great news for both our clients and our team, bringing greater strength, depth and continuity to our offering. The integration of our teams, each of whom have an excellent track record of delivering innovative financial planning solutions, gives our mutual clients a range of additional resources, expertise and life skills"

Paradigm Norton, founded in 2001, is an award-winning firm achieving an additional two honours this year alone. In January, Paradigm Norton was named by Citywire as the 2017 Top Financial Planning Firm in the South West, an accolade it has won seven times previously, and in March, it scooped the title of '2017 Adviser firm of the Year' by Money Marketing.
